THAT NEWMARKET RAID.

CONLIN REPORTS THAT CORNELL ORDERED WHOLESALE ARRESTS.

elt and Andrews flay the Magi Told Them Otherwise—Beard Orders Police to Be More Careful—Serg't Tucker and Right Policemen Bounced — McLaughlin's Case.

The Police Board met yesterday for the first time since Mayor Strong recommended Commis-sioner Parker's removal to the Governor. Mr. Parker came into the board room smiling, and apparently seemed little worried about Mayor Strong's action in the case. The Commissioners had a large amount of routine business before them. Col. Grant submitted his report in Mo-Laughlin's case, which recited merely the proceedings to which the Inspector had been subect. He said he was unable to determine whether the Inspector could be put on trial by the board, as he believed the charge against Mo-Laughlin was outlawed. He recommended that the Corporation Counsel's advice should be asked in the matter. The board decided to refer Col. Grant's report to the Coporation Counsel Chief Conlin made a report to the board relative to the raid at the Newmarket, when all the persons in the place were arrested, in which he "As to the instructions of the Magistrate who issued the warrants for the raid, I would state that I directed both Acting Inspector Har-ley and Capt. Chapman to ask him whether they should arrest all the persons found in the place, or only those named in the warrants, and their reports to me on that subject, which I transmit herewith, show that the instructions of the Magistrate were to the effect that the warrants called for the arrest of all the persons in the

"I do not care to contradict that offhand." said Commissioner Andrews after the Chief's report had been read, "but Magistrate Cornell has told me on several occasions that his orders were not to arrest every one in the place."

Mr. Roosevelt said the Magistrate had also told him the same. He added that Capt. Chapman had told him that Magistrate Cornell's in man had told him that Magistrate Cornell's instructions were to arrest every one in the place.

Mr. Andrews thought that some action should be taken to caution the force against a repetition of such wholesale arrests. He said that the police should pay particular attention to the instructions given by the Magistrates.

President Roosevelt said it appeared to him that it would be a mistake hereafter to take all persons in a licensed place, when they might have gone in innocently.

Col. Grant said that the man who ran the Newmarket was a bad fellow, and that the police should go for places of the kind, and that the only way to stop them was to keep people from going in there.

market was a had relow, and that the police should go for places of the kind, and that the only way to stop them was to keep people from going in there.

Mr. Andrews remarked that he differed with Col. Grant, and he moved that some action should be taken by the board to let the police know that, hereafter, they should use some discretion in making raids of this kind.

Commissioner Parker asserted that there was no need to take any action. He said that sufficient notice had been given to the matter, and that the police would be careful in the future. "If they overstep the line let them suffer the consequences," added Mr. Parker, Mr. Parker also contended that there was no evidence that the police disobeyed the Magistrate's instructions. "The Magistrate claimed they did and they claimed they didn't," said Mr. Parker.

"The statements are conflicting."

Mr. Roosevelt said that several persons who had gone innocently into the Newmarket and were arrested had complained to him, and he believed that the board ought to take some action. Mr. Parker demurred and voted against a resolution offered by Mr. Andrews that the Chier be directed to caution all policemen to observe and follow strictly the instructions and orders given by City Magistrates relative to the arrest of persons found in disorderly houses or other places raided by the police. The resolution was adopted, Mr. Parker alone voting no. At Mr. Roosevelt's auggestion the Committee on Rules and Discipline was directed to prepare definite instructions to the police to govern future raids.

The Commissioners dismissed from the force Sergeant James P. Tucker of the East 104th street station on an intoxication charge, Tucker has been thirteen years on the force. The complaint of intoxication was made against him by Suneon McGovern. Tucker said he was ill, and that his condition was due to small doses of champagne. Dr. McGovern swore that the Ser locked the door and told him, so Connnelley says, that he was a special Raines law agent; that he had been watching the hotel for some time and had obtained positive evidence that Connelley was violating the liquor tax law.

Connelley says the stranger offered to settle the matter for $20. Then, Connelley says, he gave the young man a thrashing, and the supposed swindler drove away with his companion. The pretended Raines law agent was arrested later at a New Brighton livery stable. When arraigned before Justice Marsh he gave the name of Charles H. Wade and his residence as New York city. He wore a badge of the American Volunteers, inscribed "For God and Country," and a search of his pockets revealed letters from Charles Smith and G. W. Stackhouse of 340 Bowery, New York. Wade was locked up for further examination. He claimed to be a collector for a New York department store.

TWO RUNAWAYS AT A FUNERAL. The Chief Mourner Climbs Through a Carriage Window to the Driver's Seat.

HASBROUCK HEIGHTS, March 24 .- Mrs. Augus tus Gross died on Monday and to-day a large number of persons attended her funeral. As the cortege turned out of Ravine avenue, the team of horses attached to the coach containing Mr. Gross, his eight-year-old daughter, the Rev. Dr. Shepherd of the Reformed Church, and Mr. and Mrs. Peter W. Stagg of Lodi, parents of Mrs. Gross, took fright and ran up Terrace avenue toward Hackensack. Mr. Gross, who is 35 years old, lowered the glass window back of the driver's seat and climbed out. With the whip handle he caught up the reins and checked the team before they had ron a mile.

When he had driven back to meet the funeral procession he learned that the horses attached to the hearse had taken fright at the other runaway and getting beyond the control of the driver had dashed up Washington place. There they were caught by a laboring man, who ran out and seized one of them by the bridle.

Then the District Attorney secured an indictment agazinst them. Judge Hurd allowed him to do so, and then discharged the two men.

Mrs. Kurts Docan't Want the Riverside Wheel

An application was made yesterday to Justice Smyth in Special Term. Part L. of the Supreme Court by Mrs. Nellie R. Kurtz of 700 West End avenue for a temporary injunction restraining the Riverside Wheelmen from establishing a clubhouse in the premises at 702 West End ave nuc. An application made by Mrs. Kurtz several weeks ago for the same purpose was denied by Justice Beekman on a technical point. Mrs. Kurtz alleged in her application yesterday that the neighborhood in which she lived and where it was sought to establish the club was purely a residential one, and that a wheelman's club

David McClure, counsel for Mrs. Kurtz, subnitted a number of affidavits from residents of West 104th street, where the Riverside Wheelnen have a club house. These set forth that men have a club house. These set forth that the annoyance to the neighborhood by the club has been serious, and that:

"The members collect in large numbers upon and around the stoop of the house in summer time and there smoke and exchange idle talk and banter and indulge in alleged wittleisms, which are always rewarded by some noisy mark of approval, much to the discomfort of the people living within hearing distance of the said club."

Mrs. Kurtz declared that beer wagons unloaded quantities of bottics, "apparently containing liquid refreshments, in front of the said premises. She also said that the members of the club sat with their legs out of the windows and expectorated into the street. She added that if the defendants occupied the premises adjoining her residence, of which they held a lease from May 1, they would block the sidewalk with their bicycles and cause such a nulsance in the neighborhood as would do the plaintiff an irreparable injury.

Charles H. Butler, counsel for the wheelmen, said that the club, which had several hundred members, was composed of respectable men, principally lawyers, actors, and architects, who would never permit the conduct charged.

THEY GAVE THE POLICE A RUN. Three Supposed Crooks, After a Lively Chase, Nabbed in Jersey City.

Two negroes and a white man, supposed to be Jersey City yesterday morning after a lively and exciting chase. The negroes gave their names as Solomon Williams and Walter Jones, and said they were homeless. The white man described himself as Robert Walker, 21 years old, of 75 First avenue, Albany. Roundsman Frey and Policeman Quinn saw the men at 3 A. M. acting suspiciously in front of a store in A. M. acting suspiciously in front of a store in Warren street. They moved away when they saw the officers coming. Roundsman Frey ordered them to halt and they ran. Frey and Quinn started in pursuit, but the fugitives proved to be sprinters, and the policemen fired several shots after them, but without effect. The shots were heard by Policemen Oxley and Manning, and they joined in the chase. At Essex street the white man separated from his companions, and Roundsman Frey captured him in a hallway. The negroes ran down to the steamship piers at the foot of York and Grand streets and made their way over to the Pennsylvania Railroad Ferry, but missed a boat. While they were cursing their hard luck Policeman Bennett, who is on duty at the ferry, walked over with the intention of speaking to them. The negroes dashed through the ferry gates into Exchange place. Beanett pursued them, firing at them as he ran. The fugitives turned the corner into Hudson street and ran plump into the arms of Policemen Quinn, Oxley, and Manning, who had been searching the hallways for them.

The prisoners were arraigned before Police Justice Potts later in the day and remanded for examination. Chief of Police Murphy will have their records hunted up. Warren street. They moved away when they take-A Mypothetical Constitution Taken Up and Discussed-A Proposed Latin Motte. The class in parliamentary law of the Women's Club in Jersey City is making very satisfactory progress under the tuition of Miss Fields. At a recent meeting the class was livided into committees of five and each com mittee was instructed to prepare a constitution for an imaginary society to establish and con duct an industrial university for women. For parliamentary practice a constitution prepared by one of the committees was submitted and dis-cussed at a session of the class on Tuesday afternoon. Miss Fields selected Mrs. Elmer Neal for Chairman of the meeting of the supposed society and Miss Clerihew for Recording Secretary. With the air of a veteran presiding officer Mrs. Neal called the meeting to order and called for the report of the first committee. Mrs. Camp-Chairman of that committee, was about to hand up the report when Miss Fields suggested that the proper way was to read it first and then pass it up to the Secretary. Mrs. Campbell read the constitution in a clear, firm voice.

"Now," said Miss Fields, "will some one move that the report be considered seriatim!" Miss Fields explained the meaning of the word seri-

A NOTED BUSINESS WOMAN.

Mrs. Mary Ann Smith, whose death on Tuesday was told of in yesterday's SUN, was unubtedly the best-known business woman in Newark, as well as one of the wealthlest. She lived at 613 Market street. Her personal estate is valued at half a million, and it is said she wned nearly all the buildings in Chambers street, as well as several houses in Orange. She was born in County Cavan, Ireland, in 1829. She went to Newark in the latter part of 1847. and three years later she was married, her husband being a boss carpenter. It was not long before she had full control of the glass works, buying out her son Phillip, who up to that time had been the head of the firm, but who had not been able to place it upon a paying basis. As soon as Mrs. Smith took possession of her new property she renewed the ontire factory. Modern machinery and equipments were introduced, and none but the most skilled workmen employed. Her business rivals fought her fiercely, but she kept up the battle until they were driven to the wall and she controlled the entire glass trade in Newark. All her purchases of materials and utensils were made on a cash basis. She never asked for credit. As the years went by her business increased, and her last days saw her at the head of the American Glass Bending and Bevelling Works, one of the largest of its kind in this country. Her vigilance over the factory was never relaxed. Daily she went the rounds of the works, and she remained often late into the night at her office looking over the books and orders. Her six sons were employed in the factory, Thomas Smith, the youngest, having her power of attorney, and as such signing her checks. years later she abandoned her grocery business her power of attorney, and as such signing her checks.

It is said that those in Mrs. Smith's employ never had a cause for complaint, for although she made them work she paid the highest wages in the town. She was never known to evict a tenant for being in arrears of rent, but on the contrary often gave help to them.

She was a devout Roman Catholic and one of the chief contributors to St. Jumes's church. Her judgment in real estate was esteemed particularly good. About three years ago her health began to fall. She managed, however, to look after her interests until about a week ago, when she was forced to take to her bed. She is survived by six sons—Philip, Patrick, John, Charles, James E., and Thomas J. D. Smith. Mrs. Smith's funeral will take place this morning from St. James's church, in Lafayette street, Newark.

Wrocked Crew Brought Here.

The Ward line steamship Vigilancia which arrived yesterday from Havana and Mexican ports, brought the mate and seven seamen of the Norwegian bark St. Olaf which aground in a gale on Feb. 27 last, near San Fernandina. The St. Olaf, which had loaded logwood at that port, which is sixty miles east of wood at that port, which is sixty miles east of Progreso. Mexico, was riding at anchor at the time waiting for good weather. She went on a lee shore and broke up the next day. All the crew got ashore without difficulty in small boats, saving all their clothes and chests. They boarded the Vigilancia at Progreso. The Norwegian Consul in this city will send the men home. Capt. Anderson of the wrecked bark remained at ban Fernandina to settle the affairs of the vessel.

Private Detective Charles C. Gibson has bee on trial in the General Sessions since Monday charged with perjury, it being alleged that he gave false testimony in the Shrady divorce case in the Supreme Court, testifying that he shadowed Mrs. Georgiana Shrady and young Poar-sall Jackson to the home of Jackson's father at 308 Madison avenue. In his own trial he has stuck to his original story. The Jacksons denied the story, and so did Mrs. Shrady. Then the prosecution put a woman on the stand who testified that she knew Gibson and had em-This time the complainant was George H. He said he had brought her to this city from Des Moines, Ia., to be his bookof 253 Broadway. Gibson denied knowing Mrs.

Vesterday the defence put a number of witnesses on the stand for the purpose of trying to prove conspiracy on the part of the prosecution, claiming that the Wanamaker political faction in Pennsylvania was trying to "railroad" Gibson because Gibson had collected the evidence on which one of the Wanamaker Senatorial campaigners had been indicted in Harrisburg last January. The first of these witness called yesterday was Iouis Wien. He said he was a private detective. He contradicted the testimony of Mrs. Zuckert by saying that he was the man who was employed by her to get evidence in her divorce case. "Gibson was never employed in that case," said the witness, "but there was a man who esembled Gibson. He was known as Detective Bolen. He is here in court now and looks a great deal like Gibson. Lawyer Leonard employed us two in this case, but Gibson was not Lawyer Leonard's son, Frank, testified that his father had the Zuckert divorce case and had his father had the Zuckert divorce case and had employed two private detectives, but that neither of them was Gibson.

After recess Mrs. Zuckert was recalled to the witness stand by Lawyer Coleman, who asked her if she had not been mistaken, mixing Gibson up with Bolen, the man he resembled.

"I am not mistaken," said Mrs. Zuckert.

"Didn't you pass Bolen on the stairs of this building to-day and tell your daughter that you had mixed the men up?"

"I did not."

The Assistant District Attorney then brought

The Assistant District Attorney then brought out the fact that Lawyer Coleman had met Mrs. Zuckert in the lobby of the Criminal Court building during the noon recess and had questioned her about her identification of Gibson. Coleman said that he knew that Mrs. Zuckert had made a grave mistake and had confronted her in the hall with the man Holen, whom she had employed and who resembled Gibson.

Mrs. Mamie Clark, a private detective, was called to the stand and testified that she was in the hall of the court building when Mrs. Zuckert and her daughter passed Bolen on the stairs. "Mrs. Zuckert remarked to her daughter that she had made a mistake," said the witness. "She told her daughter that she believed that she had identified the wrong detective."

"If I am locked up I will make a charge against this man, and he will have to go to prison, too," replied she in a determined manner, pointing to Rosenfeld, who reddened.

"What charge will you make!" asked the Magistrate. "What charge will you make?" asked the Magistrate.
"That of seduction," replied Miss Messinger.
"Make your charge," said the Magistrate. Her complaint set forth that Rosenfeld had betrayed her in Des Moines, but as the alleged offence was committed outside of the State the Court had no jurisdiction.
She was told of this and again her freedom was offered her if she would promise not to bother Rosenfeld again, but she refused to accept the conditions. Magistrate Wentworth then committed her to the Tombs for further examination to-day. She fainted when taken to the Tombs. Rosenfeld says that she is trying to blackmail him.

LADIES' CLUB IN STRAITS.

The Organization on the Verge of Collar What Has Led to This.

The Ladies' Club of New York, which has adquarters at 28 East Twenty-second street, is threatened with dissolution by reason of an acrossing number of resignations and the conse quent loss of revenue. The club, according to Mrs. Henry Shelton, the President, has never been really prosperous, and the recent hard times have made it simply impossible for the organization to go on. The New York Ladies' Club was organized in 1889 by a number of fashionable women headed by Mrs. John Kins Van Rensselaer. It was started on the proprietary plan, with the same object in view as the Alexandre Club of London, namely, to provide for women living out of town a place where they could stop while in New York shopping or on other missions.

It was also designed that the club should be egular social organization and be open at al times for the entertainment of members. The club started with a membership of thirty-five, and in three months increased this to 300. The dues at first were placed at $10 a year. Members in addition to this paid for their rooms and neals. From the first this was not found to yield revenue'sufficient to meet expenses, and the Shelton, the President, had to meet.

ganization, once to $20 and again to $30. By provision of the constitution the charter mempers paid only $10. This resulted in some dis sension. A year ago the club had 400 members, sension. A year ago the club had 400 members, but that number has now dwindled to 250. Of these 150 pay $10 dues and the others pay $30. The revenue has materially decreased, and it was decided a short time ago to give up the present club house on May 1 and practically dissolve the club. A number of the women, however, have agreed to work during the summer and, if possible, get 300 members pledged for three years, the dues to be $30. If they are successful a smaller house will be taken and the club reorganized.

Miss Shelton, one of the members and the cessful a smaller house will be taken and the club reorganized.

Miss Shelton, one of the members and the daughter of the President of the club, said yearerisy that she did not think the idea of the club was popular enough to insure its reorganization.

"Women," she said, "have not the business principles of men, as we found after the club was organized. A number of women who appeared to be earnest in the club's support resigned after they had been in it only two months. The class who belong to the club are not the kind who are at a loss for friends to visit here, and for that reason the club has failed somewhat in its main object. Women do not as a rule frequent a club house as men do, and so I suppose many of them thought that they were not getting much for their money and resigned. "It was suggested that we have the Colonial Dames meet here, or some other such woman's society, but I hardly think it would do. The proposal to unite with the Town and Country Club, of which Mrs. Ives is the President, was also rejected. Just what will be the outcome I cannot say, as everything is in such a chaotic state at present. If we succeed in getting the 300 members we will probably reorganize, but I do not think the idea of the club a popular one, or one which will ever meet with the success that was anticipated for it."

BROOKLYN'S GAS CONTRACE. od to He in Effect and $40,000 in He-

The Directors of the Brooklyn Union Gas Com pany have decided, on the advice of William U. Dykman, counsel, that the five years' contract which the Aldermen adopted and which Mayor Wurster allowed to become a law without his signature, has become effective since January L. The contract was on a sliding scale, beginning, for the city, at $1 per 1,000 feet and terminating at 90 cents and for private consumers at $1.2

at 90 cents and for private consumers at $1.20 and terminating at $1. Lest year's contract was at the uniform rate of $1.25.

At a recent meeting of the directors it was determined to proceed as if the contract had been signed, and on Tuesday President Jourdan called on Mayor Wurster with the contract and the bonds required. Mayor Wurster said he could not sign the contract until the Legislature had adjourned. Yesterday, in the bills which the company sent out, there was a statement that a relate of 5 cents per 1,000 feet would be made on the quantity supplied since Jan. 1, "to conform to contract with city, fixing prices of gas furnished to private consumers." The total relates. President Jourdan says, will foot up about $40,000.

During the five years over which the contract extends the annual saving to the private consumers by reason of the graded reduction in price will be more than $500,000. It is contended by good lawyers that the implied contract will be absolutely binding, and that even the Legislature is debarred from any agitation of the gas problem in Brooklyn for the next five years.

zing the Richmond County Police Department, and the three Police Commissioners who are legislated out of office by the measure have given notice that they will test the constituocratic and Nicholas Muller, the Democratic ocratic and Nicholas Muller, the Democratic leader of Richmond county, is at its head. The Garby law provides for the appointment of two Commissioners of different political opinion on State and national matters.

The County Judge, the District Attorney, and the Sheriff of the county are to appoint the two Commissioners. The two last-named officials are Republicans. The law requires that they give three days' public notice of the meeting at which they purpose making the appointments. Police Commissioner Muller has given notice through his counsel, Sidney F. Rawson, that he will apply for an injunction restraining them from making the appointments on the ground that the law is unconstitutional, as it prescribes a political qualification for the Commissioners. The District Attorney will oppose this contention in the courts.

Mayor Simon Kelly, who is strongly opposed to the bill, says he does not think it will pass. "It is against all our interests." he said yesterday, "and I am firmly convinced that the large majority of our taxpayers will agree with me. The time for consolidation has not yet arrived.
